

G. O. P. ENJOYS BIG MARGIN IN THIS CONGRESS

Republicans Will Have Largest Majority Since Harding Landslide.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Republican domination of the farm relief and tariff readjustment programs of the special session of the 71st Congress apparently is assured in the House where the Republicans will have the largest majority since the Harding landslide.

President Hoover's party will enter the special session April 15 with a paper majority of 104, which may be increased in the filling of vacancies and settlement of contests. The Republican majority in the first Harding congress was 167.

When the new House is called to order 71 new members will walk to the speaker's desk to take the oath of office. The experience will not be new to nine of them, however, as they have served previously in the House and starred "come-backs" in the November election.

The new House, on the basis of the latest compilation, will be composed of 268 Republicans, 163 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite.

MANY MISSING
Many able and picturesque characters will be missing from the House in the new session, but the addition of four women and the first negro member in many years will strike a new note in that body.

The most conspicuous absentees in the House will be Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, minority leader; James T. Berg, assistant majority leader, and Victor Berger, whose retirement leaves the House without a Socialist member.

Garrett made an unsuccessful race for senator while Berg failed in a try at the Ohio governorship. Berger was defeated by his long-time political opponent, William H. Stafford. The defeat of William L. Carver of Minnesota, reduced the Farmer-Laborite contingent to one member. Rev. O. J. Kvie, who defeated Andrew J. Volstead on the plea that he was drier than the author of the national prohibition act.

SOME COMEBACKS
Among the come-backs are John N. Cable of Ohio, author of the Cable act restoring citizenship to American women who married aliens and the corrupt practices act. Charles H. Sloan, who voluntarily retired from Congress 10 years after attaining important committee posts, comes back from Nebraska.

William H. Stafford, the conqueror of Berger, is expected to be an active member. In his previous service in Congress he earned the name of "the great objector," having consistently fought against bills which he believed took money from the Treasury without good cause.

Another new member, Louis L. Ludlow, is well acquainted with the ways of Congress though he has not been a member. As a veteran newspaper correspondent, he has exercised influence on legislation in the past. He was elected from the Indianapolis district.

THREE RUTHS
The "three Ruths" are expected to furnish plenty of action in the "feminine bloc" of the House. They are Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick (R) of Illinois; Mrs. Ruth Pratt (R) of New York and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen (R) of Florida. All are known as able women and will be a distinct addition to the present "feminine bloc" of five members.

Oscar DePriest, the one negro member, who succeeded Rep. Martin Madden, of Chicago, for years one of the most powerful men in the House, has already indicated that he will be active in the consideration of legislation.

SEVEN ARE RESCUED FROM LOFTY LEDGE

CHEWELAH, Wash., April 13.—Five boy scouts, a scoutmaster and his brother were rescued from a ledge on Quartzite Mountain early today. They narrowly escaped the fate of Scout Harold Stinson, who lost his grip on the ledge and plunged to his death 300 feet below.

The last man to be rescued was Don Hutchinson, the scoutmaster. He was sitting on a narrow projection of rock and could not move in any direction.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., April 12.—Five convicts escaped from the tuberculosis ward of Texas state prison early today. The prisoners cut wire enclosures during a heavy rain.

PRESBYTERY REPRESENTATIVES

Dr. FRANK H. THROOP.

E. F. DUNN.

WILSON CELLARS.

DR. F. A. WILBER.

These four men were elected this week to be the official representatives of Columbus Presbytery at the meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly in St. Paul in May. Dr. Wilber, retired, Worthington, and Dr. Throop, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, Columbus, are the ministerial commissioners. Mr. Dunn, a member of Central church, Columbus, and Mr. Cellars, of the First Presbyterian church, Circleville, are the lay commissioners.

Marion Talley Says Plans to Leave Opera Are Final and Without Regret

Young Singer Denies Love Affair Responsible For Decision To Go on Farm

(Copyright 1929 by I. N. S.)
NEW YORK, April 13.—"I have no regrets. I have made up my mind to retire from the operatic stage and I mean it, strange as that may seem. My decision is final."

Miss Marion Talley, the attractive 23-year-old Kansas City girl who, Cinderella-like, sprang into international fame four years ago as a coloratura soprano at the Metropolitan opera house in New York City, made this assertion in an interview today in her modestly furnished apartment in Seventy-fourth St. She seemed mildly surprised that her announcement that she was giving up grand opera for the simple life of a middle-west farm had aroused the interest and curiosity of the American public.

DECISION SINCERE
"I made up my mind quickly—just like that," she said, snapping her finger. "I do things that way. I always have."

"For some time I've been thinking of retiring to a farm and suddenly—on Thursday night—I decided that I would. And I announced the fact. That's all there is to it—really. I am sincere when I say that my decision is final."

She was an inscrutable, enigmatic girl—pretty as a picture—as she sat there calmly telling how she had forever forsaken the lure of the operatic stage with its intriguing associations and the thrill of singing before enthusiastic audiences in the greatest opera house in the world, to say nothing of brilliant concert appearances in leading American cities.

LAUGHS AT LOVE
Could it be that a love affair had influenced her decision? To that question, her blue eyes laughed amusedly. Even her mother, Mrs. Helen Talley, and her sister, Florence, a year or two older than Marion, who were present at the interview, smiled.

"Love affair?" Marion repeated. "Marriage? I have no intention of marrying. I have no sweetheart. One cannot marry the air."

Marion said that when she leaves to take up farm life—after she has picked out the farm—mother and Florence will accompany her. She frowned when she was asked if her farm would be a luxurious affair—if she would go in for full blooded cattle and that sort of thing.

"I don't care for de luxe things—I'm not at all extravagant," she replied. "You can see that this apartment is nothing out of the ordinary. I was advised long ago to take a more luxurious apartment but I am no hand for extravagance."

STATION IS ROBBED
The filling station of the Columbus Oil Co., on S. Court-st was entered through a window and $1.13 stolen Friday night, according to a report made by Clarence Robinson attendant, to Sheriff Frank Davis.

The station has been similarly robbed several times before, it is said.

QUICK ACTION SEEN IN FARM AID MEASURE

Both Branches of Congress Will Get Completed Bill on Convening Monday.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The newest legislative remedy for the farm problem that has harassed the government ever since the war, was completed today at both ends of the Capitol for submission to Congress when it meets Monday in special session.

The house and senate bills, differing slightly in phraseology, will provide for the creation of a federal farm board, nation-wide stabilization corporations for each farm product, and a $325,000,000 revolving fund to aid farmers in marketing their surplus crops. In its present form, leaders generally agreed, President Hoover will sign it.

The senate agriculture committee meanwhile held up acting on a suggested provision which would permit the proposed farm board to utilize the old debenture plan of relief if conditions warranted it. The debenture plan, already successful in Germany and Norway, would authorize a government bounty to be paid on the exported surplus of any crop, equal to half the tariff on that crop. If applied to wheat, with the present 42 cents a bushel tariff, the bounty would be 21 cents on each exported bushel of wheat.

AWAIT HOOVER WORD
Administration leaders on Capitol hill were waiting for some definite word from President Hoover as to his attitude on this provision. If the president disapproves it, it will be left out of the bill. If it meets with the White House endorsement, it will be included.

The new farm bill, in both house and senate, will declare it the imperative duty of the government to remove all burdens from the marketing of agricultural products. These burdens will be enumerated as price fluctuations, surpluses, speculation and inefficient and wasteful methods of distribution.

The senate bill will declare "that it is the policy of the United States to minimize such price fluctuations; by controlling a seasonal or years' total surplus, produced in the United States and either local or national in extent, that is in excess of the requirements for orderly marketing of any agricultural commodity or in excess of the domestic requirements for such commodity, in the current of interstate and foreign commerce; and by encouraging producers to organize effective associations under their own control for greater unity of effort," the house bill will express the same policy.

The new federal farm board would have 12 members with the secretary of agriculture serving as an ex-officio member. The president would have the appointing (continued on page five)

DANCE HALL RAZED BY NOCTURNAL FIRE

COLUMBUS, O., April 13.—Fire early today destroyed the Wistaria Dance floor on the J. C. Hamilton farm, one mile east of Reynoldsburg, near here. Loss was placed at $10,000.

The frame building was 150 feet long and 40 feet wide. It was a popular rendezvous of Columbus, Reynoldsburg, and Newark youths.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thomas, 327 E. Corwin-st., announce the birth of a son on Friday, April 12.

Brooklyn Bank Facade Is Decorated With View of Safecracker At Work

NEW YORK, April 13.—The Williamsburg Savings bank of Brooklyn has started something that may result in a statue of H. L. Menken over the doors of every Rotary club.

A statue of One-Eyed Connolly over the entrance to every sports stadium.

A portrait of Senator Volstead in every speakeasy.

A statue of Mabel Walker Willebrandt in every night club.

A picture of a drinker in every anti-Saloon League office.

A copy of "The Thinker" in every insane asylum.

A statue of the first press agent in every newspaper office.

A statue of Mars in every Peace society office.

A laurel wreath in every war office.

A picture of a reformer in every pugilistic training camp.

American Girls Given Credit For Setting Another Standard of Beauty

Whatever there is to be said on the question of legs has been said over and over again, hashed up in just a little different manner each time. It remained for Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, of dear old London, famous British surgeon and Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, to add a new line.

Sir Lane recently said a mouthful when he opined that American girls have the prettiest legs in the world. Furthermore, his surgical mind went on to say that even if they had small defects the girls knew how to camouflage them (the defects). In this modern age of short dresses the art of making some things even look like legs is perhaps more of an asset than just plain born with the type that men prefer.

No question but that the "Goddess of Beauty" must have personally supervised the production of the underpinnings of nine-tenths of the girls you see on the avenue. And that ain't all. This plethora of goodly legs is not confined to any locality but is mighty general, as Sir Lane says, it is an American trait and that covers a lot of territory. We girls have to hand it to Sir Lane. He knows his legs. But, then, so do we.

COMMITTEES ARE CHOSEN

Local Chapter of N. A. A. Designates Workers in Various Activities.

The directors of the recently organized Circleville Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association met Friday night at Brehmer's garage to select committees for the ensuing year. This new organization has planned activities that will mean a place on the future aviation map for Circleville. The committees selected will have much to do and they are expected to accomplish much before the year passes.

The committees are as follows: Finance and investment—C. G. Shulze, chairman and H. B. Colwell. Airways and landing fields—D. Dowden, chairman; Arthur Phillips, Geo. P. Foresman, Chas. Gilmore, Glen Nickerson, W. H. Nelson, Howard Stevenson and E. W. Hill.

Entertainment—Frank A. Lynch, chairman; Mrs. Mercedes Phillips, G. E. Hammell, Sam Joseph and Ben Gordon.

Junior activities and entertainment—R. L. Brehmer, chairman; John D. Hummel, Ralph Haines, F. E. Barnhill, Robert Colville, W. E. Wallace, J. M. Bell, Morris Boggs, Wm. Gardner and C. E. Hill.

Legislation—Paul Johnson, chairman; Tom Renick and John A. Ryan.

Publicity—Karl Herrman, chairman; H. P. McCord Jr. and A. H. Rodgers.

Membership—Thurman Miller, chairman; Mack Parrett Jr. and Fred C. Clark.

Nathan C. Bohmert of Mt Sterling, formerly of Circleville, was a visitor in Circleville Friday.

Duke Tobacco Heir Granted Divorce From Daughter of Indiana Minister

Walker P. Inman Awarded Decree After Sensational Four Weeks' Hearing

RENO, Nevada, April 13.—Walker P. Inman, wealthy Duke tobacco fortune heir, early today was granted a divorce decree from Helene Garnet Patton Inman, daughter of an Indiana clergyman.

After a long and sensational trial which was interspersed with much spicy testimony, the case was placed in the hands of the jury last night. At 12:10 this morning, after four and a half hours deliberation, it returned a verdict for the plaintiff.

The jury recommended that Mrs. Inman be given $1,500 alimony a month "until such a time that she remarries."

ALIMONY SET ASIDE
This recommendation was immediately set aside by Judge George A. Bartlett, who held that inasmuch as the jury found for the plaintiff that it should have recognized the property agreement made by the Inmans on Nov. 28, 1927. At that time Mrs. Inman agreed to be paid $15,000 a year for not more than five years.

The defense objected to Judge Bartlett's action and arguments on this phase of the case will be heard at 10:30 Monday morning. In the event that Judge Bartlett's ruling is upheld, it is expected the defense will appeal to the supreme court.

BOTH HEAR VERDICT
Both Inman and his wife were present in Judge Bartlett's chambers when the verdict was returned. Each the center of a small group, they waited until the jury had finished deliberating on the court room. Neither would make a statement at the conclusion of the case and they left the court quickly with their friends.

Although Inman was the plaintiff, his wife had filed a counter suit and sought to have the $75,000 agreement between herself and husband set aside and asked for a settlement of $250,000. Both brought sensational charges forth during the trial—a trial which lasted four weeks.

EATON ROTARY WINS CONTEST

Circleville Organization Fails To Annex District Cup By Small Margin.

The Circleville Rotary Club members who attended the 22nd District conference at Zanesville, returned Friday full of enthusiasm over the splendid meeting. Rotarians and their wives from every club in the district were in attendance and the three days were filled with good Rotary meetings for the men and entertainment for the women.

The attendance contest which has been conducted in this district by the outgoing District Governor, Robert Hughes, of Dayton, was won by the Eaton Rotary Club. Much interest has been shown by the Circleville Club in this contest and failed to win the cup by the small margin of 23-100 per cent. President Harley Colwell feels jubilant, though, for the splendid spirit of the local club members in trying to help be the winners.

For this splendid effort and the high esteem in which the past Secretary, John C. Goeller, Jr., was held, a cup was presented to the Circleville Rotary Club with the following engraving:

In loving memory of its late Secretary John C. Goeller, Jr. Carl Steeb, of Columbus, was nominated for the governor of this district and Dayton was selected as the place for the next conference.

DRY AGENT SHOOT SUSPECT IN RAID

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., April 13.—Ezra Zirkle, federal prohibition agent shot and wounded James Smith 46, of this city in a raid on an alleged "moonshine" still in Grapevine Hollow, near here last night, according to county authorities who are making a rigid investigation into the shooting today.

Zirkle fired one shot, the bullet lodging in Smith's leg.

The dry agent in a statement to county police today declared that he shot in self defense.

TRIBUTE PAID M. T. HERRICK AT NEW YORK

Lindbergh Among Those Who Follow Body of Envoy From Pier to Station.

NEW YORK, April 13.—A tribute was paid by nation, city and city today to the memory of the late Myron T. Herrick, the great statesman arrived in New York harbor aboard the French cruiser Tourville. The ship carrying the body slowly steamed up the bay this morning, escorted by the United States cruisers Marblehead and Cincinnati.

Waiting at the pier where the Tourville was due to dock, shortly before noon were prominent national, state and city officials, and a great throng of laymen and women—there to honor the memory of the man who had done so much to cement cordial relations between the United States and France.

LINDY AT PIER
Conspicuous among those to meet the body was Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, America's "flying ace," who had regarded Ambassador Herrick as almost a father since the fatal day when he landed at Le Bourget field in France after his epic non-stop flight from New York. Lindbergh flew yesterday so as to be on hand.

Flags on all public buildings were at half mast, by order of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. They will remain half-staffed after the funeral in Cleveland on Monday.

FOLLOW CARRIAGE
Among those who will follow behind the cortege to Grand Central station will be the Hon. Walter F. Brown, President Hoover's representative; Mayor James J. Walker; Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's committee; Charles Lindbergh; Wilbur J. Carr, assistant secretary of state, representing the state department; the cello, Paul Chandel, the French consul general, commanding general of the 1st and 2nd corps area, Major General M. E. Ely and staff; the mandant of the third district; Rear Admiral Louis H. Stagner and staff, and representatives of organizations and societies in which Mr. Herrick had an interest.

The military escort will be composed of one regiment of Marines and band, United States contingent of sailors from Tourville; three companies United States bluejackets and band; and a company of United States marines.

FARMERS WILL FIGHT BENDER

Ohio Bureau To Enter Battle Over Equal Representation Referendum.

COLUMBUS, O., April 13.—The Ohio Farm Bureau federation will enter the battle over the so-called "equal representation" referendum, it became apparent here today.

Close observers of the fight declare that the federation has no other choice but to oppose the proposed referendum, which calls for re-appointment of members of the members of the state legislature to "break the supposed majority rural representation" in the Ohio general assembly.

L. B. Palmer, head of the farm bureau, declared that a meeting of the legislative committee of the federation would be held here Monday, and after the convocation, he said, the organization would announce its stand.

Sen. George H. Bender, sponsor of the referendum, is scheduled to begin the circulation of his petitions today. Dallas Sullivan, youthful Union-occasional representative, has taken on the job of leadership on behalf of the rural districts and is opposing Bender in his referendum fight.

SENT TO LANCASTER

URBANA, O., April 13.—Dwight Floss, 16, found guilty of carrying concealed weapons, had today been ordered taken to the Boys Industrial School at Lancaster.

Arraigned before Juvenile Court Judge H. H. Santa here yesterday the youth faced a murder charge in connection with the death of 5-year-old Richard O'Connell, who was killed by a bullet from Floss' revolver when the weapon was charged after falling from his pocket. The accident occurred April 5 in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Fryland at St. Paul, O.

ALIMONY SET ASIDE
This recommendation was immediately set aside by Judge George A. Bartlett, who held that inasmuch as the jury found for the plaintiff that it should have recognized the property agreement made by the Inmans on Nov. 28, 1927. At that time Mrs. Inman agreed to be paid $15,000 a year for not more than five years.

The defense objected to Judge Bartlett's action and arguments on this phase of the case will be heard at 10:30 Monday morning. In the event that Judge Bartlett's ruling is upheld, it is expected the defense will appeal to the supreme court.

BOTH HEAR VERDICT
Both Inman and his wife were present in Judge Bartlett's chambers when the verdict was returned. Each the center of a small group, they waited until the jury had finished deliberating on the court room. Neither would make a statement at the conclusion of the case and they left the court quickly with their friends.

Although Inman was the plaintiff, his wife had filed a counter suit and sought to have the $75,000 agreement between herself and husband set aside and asked for a settlement of $250,000. Both brought sensational charges forth during the trial—a trial which lasted four weeks.

EATON ROTARY WINS CONTEST

Circleville Organization Fails To Annex District Cup By Small Margin.

The Circleville Rotary Club members who attended the 22nd District conference at Zanesville, returned Friday full of enthusiasm over the splendid meeting. Rotarians and their wives from every club in the district were in attendance and the three days were filled with good Rotary meetings for the men and entertainment for the women.

The attendance contest which has been conducted in this district by the outgoing District Governor, Robert Hughes, of Dayton, was won by the Eaton Rotary Club. Much interest has been shown by the Circleville Club in this contest and failed to win the cup by the small margin of 23-100 per cent. President Harley Colwell feels jubilant, though, for the splendid spirit of the local club members in trying to help be the winners.

For this splendid effort and the high esteem in which the past Secretary, John C. Goeller, Jr., was held, a cup was presented to the Circleville Rotary Club with the following engraving:

Presented to the Rotary Club of CIRCLEVILLE In loving memory of its late Secretary John C. Goeller, Jr. Carl Steeb, of Columbus, was nominated for the governor of this District and Dayton was selected as the place for the next conference.

DRY AGENT SHOOTS SUSPECT IN RAID

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., April 13.—Ezra Zirkle, federal prohibition agent, shot and wounded James Smith, 46, of this city in a raid on an alleged "moonshine" still in Grapevine Hollow, near here last night, according to county authorities who are making a rigid investigation into the shooting today.

Zirkle fired one shot, the bullet lodging in Smith's leg. The dry agent in a statement to county police today declared that he shot in self defense.

TRIBUTE PAID M. T. HERRICK AT NEW YORK

Lindbergh Among Those Who Follow Body of Envoy From Pier to Station.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Solemn tribute was paid by nation, state and city today to the memory of the late Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France, as the body of the great statesman arrived in New York harbor aboard the French cruiser Tourville. The warship carrying the body slowly steamed up the bay this morning, escorted by the United States cruisers Marblehead and Cincinnati.

Waiting at the pier where the Tourville was due to dock shortly before noon were prominent federal, state and city officials, and a great throng of laymen and women—there to honor the memory of the man who had done so much to cement cordial relations between the United States and France.

LINDY AT PIER
Conspicuous among those to meet the body was Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, America's flying "ace," who had regarded Ambassador Herrick as almost a father since the fateful day when he landed at Le Bourget field in Paris after his epic non-stop flight from New York. Lindbergh flew here yesterday so as to be on hand.

Flags on all public buildings were at half mast, by order of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. They will remain half-staffed until after the funeral in Cleveland on Monday.

FOLLOW CASKET
Among those who will form behind the cortege to Grand Central station will be the Hon. Walter F. Brown, President Hoover's representative; Mayor James J. Walker; Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's committee; Colonel Lindbergh; Wilbur J. Carr, assistant secretary of state, representing the state department; his excellency, Paul Claudel, the French ambassador; Maxine Monger, the French consul general; the commanding general of the second corps area, Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely and staff; the commandant of the third naval district, Rear Admiral Louis R. De Steiguer and staff, and representatives of organizations and societies in which Mr. Herrick had an interest.

The military escort will be composed of one regiment of infantry and band, United States army; a contingent of sailors from the Tourville; three companies of United States bluejackets and a band; and a company of United States marines.

FARMERS WILL FIGHT BENDER

Ohio Bureau To Enter Battle Over Equal Representation Referendum.

COLUMBUS, O., April 13.—The Ohio Farm Bureau federation will enter the battle over the Bender so-called "equal representation" referendum, it became apparent here today.

Close observers of the fight declare that the federation has no other choice but to oppose the proposed referendum, which seeks re-apportionment of members of the members of the state legislature to "break the supposed majority rural representation" in the Ohio general assembly.

L. B. Palmer, head of the farm bureau, declared that a meeting of the legislative committee of the federation would be held here Monday, and after the convocation, he said, the organization would announce its stand.

Sen. George H. Bender, sponsor of the referendum, is scheduled to begin the circulation of his petitions today. Dallas Sullivan, youthful Union-co representative, has taken on the yoke of leadership on behalf of the rural districts and is opposing Bender in his referendum fight.

SENT TO LANCASTER

URBANA, O., April 13.—Denzil Floss, 16, found guilty of carrying concealed weapons, had today been ordered taken to the Boys Industrial School at Lancaster.

Arraigned before Juvenile Court Judge H. H. Banta here yesterday the youth faced a murder charge in connection with the death of 3-year-old Richard Gillespie, who was killed by a bullet from Floss' revolver when the weapon discharged after falling from his pocket. The accident occurred April 5, in the home of Mrs. Harland Fryland at St. Paris, O.

TIGERS ASKED TO JOIN MEET

Circleville High School Invited To Enter Track and Field Meet.

Circleville high school has been invited to send a track team to the 13th Interscholastic track and field meet at Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh, on Saturday, May 4, 1929. Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics, announced today. About 50 different high schools in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, New York, and Maryland have been asked to compete.

South Brownsville, Pa., high school won the meet last year. As usual competition will be restricted to high school teams as no prep schools have been invited. Championship relay races in four different classes will be run off as an additional feature of the meet.

The Annual Interscholastic has become the largest meet of its kind in western Pennsylvania, plans being made this year to entertain between 700 and 1000 competitors. A cup will be awarded to the school winning the track and field meet and similar trophies are offered for the winning teams in the relay races. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded to the winners of the events.

Officials engaged by Student Manager Ralph E. Stowell include A. C. Couch, referee; Dr. William L. Marks, starter; Joseph Wagman, clerk of course; and H. G. Blum, field judge.

WILLIAMSPORT

Mrs. Essie F. Ater and daughter, Miss Ruth Ater, Mrs. Jennie Tipton, Miss Carolyn Bochard, and C. E. Hill attended public inspection of the White Shrine at Chillicothe on Tuesday evening.

Walter W. Wright and Earl Cook were Columbus visitors Wednesday afternoon.

Charles Carter of Clarksburg was in Williamsport Wednesday. Mrs. Lulu Lisle and Mrs. Emma Wiggins were shoppers in Columbus on Monday.

Mrs. Lulu Lisle and Dr. Charles Davis of New Holland, were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage, Circleville at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The bride was very attractive in her georgette gown of Independence blue, with harmonizing accessories. After a brief wedding trip the couple will reside in New Holland. Mrs. Davis has spent the past several years in Williamsport where her charming manner has won a host of friends, who will wish for the couple a happy future.

C. W. Coffland was a Columbus visitor on Wednesday.

Edward C. Rector of Circleville was a Williamsport visitor on Wednesday.

Mrs. Belle F. Rector of Circleville, was a guest of Mrs. Emma Wiggins a part of this week.

The second birthday party of the year, in Heber Chapter No. 62, was held on Thursday evening following regular chapter. Mrs. Frank B. Kilby and Mrs. C. E. Hill had charge of the occasion. The usual program was omitted and following the regular chapter session and initiation refreshments of ice cream, cakes and coffee were served.

Out of town members present were, Mrs. Belle F. Rector, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Rector and daughter, Miss Gwendolyn and Mrs. Ella Hornbeck of Circleville; Mrs. D. Earl Adkins of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carter and Miss Virginia Martin and Mr. Thomas Carter, of Clarksburg. Guests were present from Clarksburg and New Holland chapters.

The annual inspection of Heber chapter, No. 62, will be held on May 16th.

C. E. Hill attended a meeting of Funeral Directors held at New Lexington on Thursday evening. Mr. Hill accompanied Mr. Schlager of Ashville.

C. E. Hill, H. White Campbell and Merrill Carman attended Mason inspection at Circleville on Wednesday evening.

Howard Smith attended a Scottish Rite meeting in Columbus on Friday evening.

"Smile Rodney, Smile," the senior class play will be held on Friday evening, April 19th, at the school auditorium. The music for the occasion will be furnished by Bales' orchestra.

Insurance Satisfaction

The need of insurance is a basic need—physical, financial, and moral. Self-protection, security, and immortality, love of life, and the desire to leave a legacy for the benefit of those who remain, are the motives which inspire the desire for insurance. LETTERS TO EDITOR

HELPFUL NOTES

Editor, The Circleville Herald:

Dear Sir:

The city fathers have decided to build the hospital on ground that they can buy rather than on ground that has been given to them just to show that they are highly in favor of keeping the city out of debt and in addition the location as now picked will have to have a sewerage system put down at the cost of about $12,000.00 where as the location given by Chas. Niles and wife already has the sewerage system awaiting to be tapped.

After the dear good fathers build the grand hospital out in the country at a cost of $75,000.00 where is the money coming from to pay two or three nurses, a janitor, a matron to feed the nurses and the janitor and a patient now and then. By the way where are they going to build the sewage disposal plant—right here is where I want to suggest that the city builds at the same time a combination disposal plant and hospital to save the additional trouble of building just a disposal plant a little later. To build the two together would be a real savings to the tax payers and as the city is now broke I think the council ought to take that into consideration and build them both right off the bat because we sure do need them badly and up-to-date I do not see just how we have gotten along without "our" hospital.

As the city is broke we now face the facts that the fire department is short three men by the order of the big boys who regulate the price and rates of our insurance policies here in this town.

Now we must get busy and build the hospital at once out in the country because we need it badly and can not get along without it. Some one suggested that we build a three or four room emergency hospital on the Niles donated location to take care of our emergencies but I am not in favor of that because we ought to have a 50 room hospital on a big tract of land so the two nurses, the matron and the janitor can have a four some in bridge tennis and as the doctors will park their golf sticks in the hospital (rooms 2 to 12 inclusive for parking golf sticks and other paraphernalia required in playing golf) they can play golf too.

As paw is rich and maw don't care the city fathers can build a sewerage disposal plant any time for the small cost of $250,000.00. Any body interested in the building of the new much needed hospital will meet me next week out in the country where the big boys are waiting to see what we can do for them.

Yours truly,
Aloft Reichenstein.

P. S.—I forgot to ask: Do you know where we could spend $100,000 or two? Don't you think we ought to increase the tax rate?

THEATRES

RADIO AND SCREEN STARS

A delightful Sunday program of entertainment has been arranged at the Cliftona theater for tomorrow with Jack and Gene, the Happy Harmony boys from station WLW appearing in person, and with William Lloyd, Alan Hale and Jacqueline Logan taking the leading parts in the photoplay "Power". Jack and Gene will be accompanied to Circleville from Cincinnati by Jake and Lena and the foursome expects to have a merry time here.

William Lloyd, who is rapidly establishing himself as one of the screen's leading portrayers of honest, working-man roles in his new feature, "Power," which comes to the Cliftona theatre Sunday.

This is a comedy drama built along the lines of "Skyscraper," one of the most successful of recent Pathe features, and in it Lloyd is seen as a worker on a large reservoir dam. As in "Skyscraper," he has Alan Hale for his two-fisted buddy Howard Higgin directed.

"Power" is an original story by Tay Garnett and Howard Higgin. Jacqueline Logan is leading woman and in the cast are Jerry Drew, Pauline Curley and other noted screen players.

"CROOKS CAN'T WIN"

Ralph Lewis, Thelma Hill and Sam Nelson are starred at the Grand theater tonight in "Crooks Can't Win," a story of a family of cops the retired policeman still proud of having served on the force and anxious to see his adopted son succeed in his chosen field. An Educational comedy is also on the bill.

The Church Invites You

Parents and the Church Service

Parents cannot afford to absent themselves from the church service because (1) they want the spiritual interests of their children safeguarded, (2) they want the best possible community in which to live, (3) they want to do their part in making the nation more Christian, (4) they want to set a good example and give out a helpful influence to others.

The church's business is to care for spiritual interests, to make a better community, to project Christian principles into the thinking of the peoples of the nation and to bring into individual lives the spirit of Christ.
The churches of the community extend an invitation to worship next Sunday. WHY NOT ACCEPT THE INVITATION AND COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

Hezekiah leads his people back to God, II Chronicles 30:1-9, 25-27 for Sunday, April 14th.

1. How account for Hezekiah being such a good king, having had a wicked father as king before him?
2. What principle in this lesson may be deduced helpful in correcting wrongs in political government?

3. How proceed to have a revival of religion as taught in this lesson?

4. What made it difficult for Israel to accept the invitation extended by the king to worship at Jerusalem?

5. How is the non-church going habit formed and how may it be corrected?

6. In what respect is the League of Nations effecting a better understanding and a finer relationship between nations?

William Jennings Bryan said, "Those who differ in their applications of religion to life can be brought together only by so intensifying faith in God and reverence for him as to dissolve their difference in a unity of purpose and of faith."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Hezekiah leads his people back to God, II Chronicles 30:1-9, 25-27 for Sunday, April 14.

Hezekiah was a true worshiper of Jehovah, possibly lead into this true faith by the prophet Micah. As soon as he came to the throne, he put the temple of Solomon in order, repairing and cleaning it, and reorganizing the services there which had fallen into neglect. Our lesson finds him in the midst of this reformation.

V. 1. "And Hezekiah sent to Israel and all Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, to keep the passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel." Israel and Judah had been separated two hundred years and had recently been at war with each other, Judah having suffered the defeat; the king believed that if a worship of God were revived, that wars would cease.

V. 2. "For the king had taken council, and his princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, to keep the passover in the second month." The passover should have been rightly held in the first month of the year but they could not keep it because the priests had not sanctified themselves in sufficient number, neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem. Better worship late than never for worship is fundamental.

V. 6. "So the posts went with the letters from the king and the princes throughout all Israel and Judah and according to the commandment of the king, saying, ye children of Israel, that he may return to the remnant that are escaped of you out of the land of the Assyria." The letters were

What needs can you help to meet should ever be in one's mind when thinking of his life work. To be specific, what needs could you help to meet by working in a bakery? tobacco factory? an ammunition factory? an automobile shop? What specific needs could help supply by being a teacher? a lawyer? a minister? a music teacher? a civil engineer? an inventor? a mechanic?
Each one has a certain natural ability, some natural likes and dislikes, some special taste which must be considered in the selection of a life work, in order that one may be happy in that work.
But there is needed a motive power when one enters his selected vocation and that will be found in his high purpose to render the best service to mankind of which he is capable, meeting some of the crying needs, knowing that this purpose corresponds to the very purpose of God, who, if properly recognized, will in a mysterious way re-enforce man's purpose, furnishing a veritable dynamo which makes man in his work a mighty power for good.

Parents and the Church Service

Parents cannot afford to absent themselves from the church service because (1) they want the spiritual interests of their children safeguarded, (2) they want the best possible community in which to live, (3) they want to do their part in making the nation more Christian, (4) they want to set a good example and give out a helpful influence to others.

The church's business is to care for spiritual interests, to make a better community, to project Christian principles into the thinking of the peoples of the nation and to bring into individual lives the spirit of Christ.

The churches of the community extend an invitation to worship next Sunday. WHY NOT ACCEPT THE INVITATION AND COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

Hezekiah leads his people back to God, II Chronicles 30: 1-9, 25-27 for Sunday, April 14th.

1. How account for Hezekiah being such a good king, having had a wicked father as king before him?

2. What principle in this lesson may be deduced helpful in correcting wrongs in political government?

3. How proceed to have a revival of religion as taught in this lesson?

4. What made it difficult for Israel to accept the invitation extended by the king to worship at Jerusalem?

5. How is the non-church going habit formed and how may it be corrected?

6. In what respect is the League of Nations effecting a better understanding and a finer relationship between nations?

William Jennings Bryan said, "Those who differ in their applications of religion to life can be brought together only by so intensifying faith in God and reverence for him as to dissolve their difference in a unity of purpose and of faith."

Creamed Comments on S.S. Lesson

Hezekiah leads his people back to God, II Chronicles 30:1-9, 25-27 for Sunday, April 14.

Hezekiah was a true worshiper of Jehovah, possibly lead into this true faith by the prophet Micah. As soon as he came to the throne, he put the temple of Solomon in order, repairing and cleaning it, and reorganizing the services there which had fallen into neglect. Our lesson finds him in the midst of this reformation.

V. 1. "And Hezekiah sent to Israel and all Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, to keep the passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel." Israel and Judah had been separated two hundred years and had recently been at war with each other, Judah having suffered the defeat; the king believed that if a worship of God were revived, that wars would cease.

V. 2. "For the king had taken council, and his princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, to keep the passover in the second month." The passover should have been rightly held in the first month of the year but they could not keep it because the priests had not sanctified themselves in sufficient number, neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem. Better worship late than never for worship is fundamental.

V. 6. "So the posts went with the letters from the king and the princes throughout all Israel and Judah and according to the commandment of the king, saying, ye children of Israel, that he may return to the remnant that are escaped of you out of the land of the Assyria." The letters were human needs? Mary Moxey in her book, "Finding My Place," says, "the leading needs of men and women are food, shelter, clothing, transportation, communication, knowledge, health, recreation, art, love, religion, freedom and power."

What needs can you help to meet should ever be in one's mind when thinking of his life work. To be specific, what needs could you help to meet by working in a bakery? tobacco factory? a chewing gum corporation? an ammunition factory? an automobile shop? What specific needs could help supply by being a teacher? a lawyer? a minister? a music teacher? a civil engineer? an inventor? a mechanic?

Each one has a certain natural ability, some natural likes and dislikes, some special taste which must be considered in the selection of a life work, in order that one may be happy in that work. But there is needed a motive power when one enters his selected vocation and that will be found in his high purpose to render the best service to mankind of which he is capable, meeting some of the crying needs, knowing that this purpose corresponds to the very purpose of God, who, if properly recognized, will in a mysterious way re-enforce man's purpose, furnishing a veritable dynamo which makes man in his work a mighty power for good.

TIGERS ASKED TO JOIN MEET

Circleville High School Invited To Enter Track and Field Meet.

Circleville high school has been invited to send a track team to the 13th Interscholastic track and field meet at Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh, on Saturday, May 4, 1929. Clarence Overend, graduate manager of athletics, announced today. About 150 different high schools in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, New York, and Maryland have been asked to compete.

South Brownsville, Pa., high school won the meet last year. As usual competition will be restricted to high school teams as no prep schools have been invited. Championship relay races in four different classes will be run off as an additional feature of the meet.

The Annual Interscholastic has become the largest meet of its kind in western Pennsylvania, plans being made this year to entertain between 700 and 1000 competitors. A cup will be awarded to the school winning the track and field meet and similar trophies are offered for the winning teams in the relay races. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded to the winners of the events.

Officials engaged by Student Manager Ralph R. Stowell include A. C. Couch, referee; Dr. William L. Marks, starter; Joseph Wagman, clerk of course; and H. G. Blum, field judge.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

HELPFUL NOTES

Editor, The Circleville Herald:

Dear Sir:

The city fathers have decided to build the hospital on ground that they can buy rather than on ground that has been given to them just to show that they are highly in favor of keeping the city out of debt and in addition the location as now picked will have to have a sewerage system put down at the cost of about $12,000.00 where as the location given by Chas. Niles and wife is ready has the sewerage system awaiting to be tapped.

After the dear good fathers build the grand hospital out in the country at a cost of $75,000.00 where is the money coming from to pay two or three nurses, a janitor, a matron to feed the nurses and the janitor and a patient now and then. By the way where are they going to build the sewage disposal plant—right here is where I want to suggest that the city build at the same time a combination disposal plant and hospital to save the additional trouble of building just a disposal plant a little later. To build the two together would be a real savings to the tax payers and as the city is now broke I think the council ought to take that into consideration and build them both right off the bat because we sure do need them badly and up-to-date I do not see just how we have gotten along without "our" hospital.

As the city is broke we now face the facts that the fire department is short three men by the order of the big boys who regulate the price and rates of our insurance policies here in this town. Now we must get busy and build the hospital at once out in the country because we need it badly and can not get along without it. Some one suggested that we build a three or four room emergency hospital on the Niles donated location to take care of our emergencies but I am not in favor of that because we ought to have a 50 room hospital on a big tract of land so the two nurses, the matron and the janitor can have a four some in bridge, tennis and as the doctors will park their golf sticks in the hospital (rooms 2 to 12 inclusive for parking golf sticks and other paraphernalia required in playing golf) they can play golf too.

As paw is rich and maw don't care the city fathers can build a sewage disposal plant any time for the small cost of $250,000.00. Any body interested in the building of the new much needed hospital will meet me next week out in the country where the big hospital is to be built for the two nurses, the matron and janitor, and we will go over the grounds carefully and see if there is room enough out there after we build the $75,000.00 hospital for a darn good onion bed and a five hole golf course. I will be there between 6 and 7 a. m.

Let's get busy and build at once. I would like to hear from others if they are interested in my plans. If you are not interested don't write.

Yours truly,
Aloft Reichenstein.

P. S.—I forgot to ask: Do you know where we could spend $100,000 or two? Don't you think we ought to increase the tax rate?
A. R.

Channel Tunnel (regarding)
About two and a half miles of the tunnel under the English Channel were constructed by 1895, by which year the project was abandoned on military grounds. Three-quarters of a mile was completed on the English side, between Dover and Calais, and a half mile on the French side.

Early Bible Translation
The first translation of the Bible of any literature value, into the popular or Latin tongue, was the translation of St. Jerome in the reign of Pope Gregory. This version is known as the "Vulgate." St. Jerome commenced the translation in 382 and the work was practically finished in 390 A. D.

RADIO AND SCREEN STARS

A delightful Sunday program of entertainment has been arranged at the Cliftona theater for tomorrow with Jack and Gene, the Happy Harmony boys from station WLW appearing in person, and with William Boyd, Alan Hale and Jacqueline Logan taking the leading parts in the photoplay "Power." Jack and Gene will be accompanied to Circleville from Cincinnati by Jake and Lena and the foursome expects to have a merry time here.

William Boyd, who is rapidly establishing himself as one of the screen's leading portrayers of honest he-men, has another one of his popular working-man roles in his new feature, "Power," which comes to the Cliftona theatre Sunday.

This is a comedy drama built along the lines of "Skyscraper," one of most successful of recent Pathe features, and in it Boyd is seen as a worker on a large reservoir dam. As in "Skyscraper," he has Alan Hale for his two-fisted buddy. Howard Higgin directed.

"Power" is an original story by Tay Garnett and Howard Higgin. Jacqueline Logan is leading woman and in the cast are Jerry Drew, Pauline Curley and other noted screen players.

"CROOKS CAN'T WIN"
Ralph Lewis, Thelma Hill and Sam Nelson are starred at the Grand theater tonight in "Crooks Can't Win," a story of a family of cops, the retired policeman still proud of having served on the force and anxious to see his adopted son succeed in his chosen field. An Educational comedy is also on the bill.

Fealty to Her "Folks"
Old "Mammy's" Passion
Unswerving fealty to her "white folks" was an outstanding characteristic of the old-time "mammy." The instances are many where even after her emancipation she remained with the family to which she had belonged to succeeding generations. She not only waited on her eyes when she fell asleep in death, but she was present at the burial of all the children and helped to rear them, and perhaps to perform the same office for the grand children and great-grandchildren. When "Young Miss" was married "mammy" usually exercised her prerogative of being the first to kiss the bride, and "mammy's" osculatory evidence not only was sincere and genuine, but it was regarded as good luck.
Often "mammy's" own "white folks" became financially embarrassed and lost everything. On "mammy" did not desert them. On the other hand, she invariably stuck to them through thick and thin and was willing to share any reverse to which they might be subjected. Here was a devotion that was strong and lasting.
Her "white folks" might forgive an enemy, but "mammy" never forgot or forgave one who wronged any of her people. Often she took the family name with which she was so long identified and in death many of the old-time "black mammys" sleep in the family burial plot in a grave reserved for them. In the graveyards the epitaph on her tombstone bears witness to the fidelity of some negro "mammy." - Louisville Courier-Journal.

Keep youth longer!
cleanse the system of poisons
Two of the great enemies to youth and vitality are delayed elimination and intestinal poisons. To keep yourself free from both these common difficulties will help you to stay young.
With the use of Nujol you can do it. For Nujol absorbs body poisons and carries them off, preventing their absorption by the body. Nujol also softens the waste matter and brings about normal evacuation. It is harmless; contains no drugs or medicine. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys. Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.

THINK BEFORE YOU DEFY HEALTH RULES

Nature is a Relentless Policeman, Says Dr. Copeland and Sooner or Later Will Call You to Account for Habitual Breaking of Her Laws.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONCE in a while you read something that gives you a funny feeling. Just now I saw a sentence of this sort in a newspaper. "Game laws are better enforced than laws for the protection of human life."

Man is regarded as a free moral agent. That is, he is so regarded in respect to most things. Of course, many laws are enacted to control his conduct, but in most of his doings and not-doings he is left to himself.

But the laws for the protection of wild game are enforced strictly. It is not safe to shoot deer out of season, or to take home the undersized fish.

But many laws intended to protect human life are too frequently more honored in the breach than the observance. This is a pity. Nothing can be more precious than human life. It makes me sad when I observe the many and serious violations of the laws intended to guard health.

In enlightened communities the officials make pretty consistent efforts to enforce the laws and ordinances enacted to protect human life. Efforts at enforcement are spasmodic and half hearted. This is a mistake.

As regards health there are many laws that existed long before men thought in terms of legislation. I refer, of course, to the laws of nature. These are the first of the "unwritten laws." They always have been and always will be.

Nature is kind and patient. She will forgive a good deal. But just as sure as you are born she will call you to account for continued mistakes, for habitual violations of the health rules.

Many a bootlegger is never caught. Thousands of murderers are never discovered. Burglars ply their trade and are never found by the police. Man-made laws are broken every day and in a percentage of cases nothing happens.

But that isn't the way with nature's laws. She is more unforgiving than the most perfect adding machine. She records every failure of yours to observe her demands.

We forget this fact sometimes. We take a chance of getting pneumonia, of having a fatal accident, of poisoning the blood. We wouldn't think of catching trout out of season, but we do not hesitate a minute about catching cold.

The sign, "Do not trespass," is likely to be observed. "No hunting allowed" is an admonition that is heeded. But what about the sanitary law, "Never cough or sneeze without covering the face?" We should help to enforce the sanitary laws and certainly should

SEEK TO LINK TWO MURDERS

Torch Slayer of One Woman Is Being Questioned About Similar Crime.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 13.-A new attempt was to be made today to link Henry Colin Campbell confessed "torch slayer" of Mrs. Mildred Mowry to the murder of Miss Margaret Brown, New York governess.

Miss Brown's body, like that of Mrs. Mowry, was found blazing in a pool of gasoline on a lonely road near here. No motive for her murder has ever been established. Campbell confessed to shooting and burning Mrs. Mowry on the night of Feb. 23.

The similarity of the two crimes is what has led police to believe that they may have been the work of the same man. Prosecutors David and Bergen, of Somerset, who are aiding in the prosecution, are convinced that if both crimes were not committed by the same man the latter one was inspired by the first.

While readily admitting Mrs. Mowry's murder, Campbell has steadfastly insisted that he has no knowledge of Miss Brown's death other than what he read in the newspapers.

Prominent among the added developments in the sensational case today were an announcement by Campbell's wife, Mrs. Rosalie Campbell, an attractive woman of 35, that she "intended sticking by her husband until he is dead," and the revelation that Campbell had become addicted to dope since the slaying.

HIGH CLASS FILMS ARE BOOKED HERE

The following excellent pictures, with the best rating for this year, have been procured by the management of the Cliftona theater for showing in the next few weeks: "Weary River" with Richard Barthelmus; "The Iron Mask" with Douglas Fairbanks; "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Barker," "The Idle Rich," and on May 5, that remarkable picture, "The Broadway Melody," will start. Mayor Hedges Is First Buyer Of Leper Tags

Mayor B. T. Hedges wore the first tag for the Leper Fund Friday afternoon. Tom Hill, widely known colored man of Circleville, was the first volunteer to offer his contribution to the fund. The city is responding liberally to this cause, which although vague to some, is nevertheless worthy to all.

The sight of the chocolate cake in the window at the mayor's office is urging the persons selling tags to greater activity, and the two other prizes, tickets to the Cliftona and Grand theaters, are especially attractive to the young children. Sale of the tags will continue until late Saturday night.

Selling the tags are John Mason, Eloise Hanley, Betty Fissell, Martha Osborn, Nina Deuman, Mary May Haswell, Sarah Steinhauer, Charlotte Steinhauer, Waldo Hilyard, Dorothy Lyle, Bob Adkins, Bobby Fickard, Miss Mary Pickens, Miss Martha Mary Jacob, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, Miss Doris Peters, Charlotte Moore and Mrs. George Crites.

THE SCOTTISH RACE

The Scots did not originate in Ireland, but the tribe that supplied the name Scotland did.

Like all the other inhabitants of Europe, the Scots are a mixed race. When the Roman General Agricola invaded Scotland in 78 A. D. he found tribes with varied dialects, some probably speaking Gaelic and others, Celtic, the speech of the Britons. He called them all Caledonians.

The Scots came in when Rome withdrew her legions in 410 A. D. They were a tribe from Ireland who conquered a lot of territory and gave the nation its name.

power and the term of members would be for six years.

The board's powers would include authority to create stabilization corporations, one for each commodity, out of cooperative marketing associations. The board then would have power to lend up to $225,000,000 of government funds to these stabilization corporations to aid them in marketing surplus crops. A special $50,000,00 fund would be at the board's disposal for loans to cooperative marketing associations to end the latter in normal marketing operations.

In order to encourage farmers to join the cooperatives, the bill

Includes a $25,000,000 loan to cooperatives for membership drives. Another $500,000 fund would be set up to cover insurance of members against price fluctuations. These loans would bear but one percent interest.

BIBLE THOUGHT

GREAT CONTRASTS—Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? prudent, and he shall know them? for the ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them; but the transgressors shall fall therein.—Hosea 14:9.

PRAYER—"God never yet forsok in need, The soul that trusteth Him indeed."

HOW IS YOUR CREDIT?

How is your credit? Is it good or bad or just fair? Good credit is a big asset. Bad credit is a liability. A man's credit tells a lot about him. If it is good you know he pays his bills promptly; is dependable; is honest; that his word is good.

Good credit means not only these things but it means that a man does not contract obligations unless he knows how and when he is going to meet them. He uses good judgment in his buying. It does not necessarily mean that a man has a lot of money because his credit is good. He may have very little and still have good credit if he is particular about always meeting his obligations when he says he will. Or if he has some misfortune and can not pay when he expected he can still keep good credit by going to the man he owes and telling him the truth about conditions and when he will pay. Never promise to do something and then not do it without explaining why. Tell the man you owe the truth and prove to him that you are making a real effort to pay him. Until you have settled with him be careful about assuming other obligations. The easy way to evade an obligation at the time may seem to be to lie about conditions but this is the sure way to ruin your credit.

Practically without exception the man with poor credit is a liar. He has promised to do things he knew he could not do and given reasons for not doing them which were false. He has assumed obligations which if he had any kind of judgment he knew there was little chance of him being able to meet when he promised he would. If your credit is bad you are not dependable. You can have no respect for yourself and of course others do not respect you.

If you owe bills which are long past due we suggest that you start in paying them. Do this for your own satisfaction. It will mean a lot more to you than to the man you owe. He may need the money but he does not need it nearly as bad as you need to pay it. Watch every corner of your expenditures, deny yourself everything but the necessities of life until you get your past due bills paid. Go and make a small payment on the old bills even if you can pay regularly on them until they are paid. You will be thankful if you do this.

No man knows when he is going to need credit. If he has proved that he is honest, dependable, has always been good pay he will be able to get credit for any reasonable amount. Good credit has saved many a business in times of financial difficulties. Good credit has secured comforts and luxuries for loved ones in times of sickness and misfortune.

Every man establishes his own credit. What is your credit standing in your own community?

Crippled Since He Was 13, Wins High Place in Chemistry.

St. Louis.—Although he is paralyzed from the waist down and has been confined to bed or a wheel chair since he was thirteen, Thomas M. Pierce, at the age of twenty-eight, has been graduated from St. Louis university, has completed a post-graduate course in chemical engineering at Washington university, and has to his record two financially successful chemical discoveries.

When he was thirteen a hunting accident left a bullet in young Pierce's upper vertebrae. Three operations, the most recent of them last October, have failed to relieve the paralysis that resulted, although the bullet has been removed following a series of events described by Thomas M. Pierce, Sr., as unprecedented in medical history.

An operation shortly after the accident revealed that the bullet was visible in the boy's upper spine, but inaccessible because it had entered from the front, narrowly missing the windpipe. Several years later it became dislodged, traveling down the spinal column to the small of the back and was extracted.

In the meantime, the elder Pierce, who is vice president and general counsel of the Terminal Railroad association, had fitted up a complete chemical laboratory in the Pierce home at No. 21 Vandeventer place and had engaged tutors for his son.

Had Chauffeur and Valet.
"Tom was always bright," Pierce told a reporter. "He led his classes at Western Military academy where he was attending school at the time of his injury. After I brought him home from his grandfather's place at Union City, Tenn., where he had been shot, the school sent me a medal for scholarship that Tom had won."

"Well, after the tutoring he attended classes at St. Louis university in his wheel chair. He finished there and then took a post-graduate course in chemical engineering at Washington university. "When he went to Washington university, where he had a lot of laboratory work to do, we had a laboratory table built especially for him. It was cut away in a little semicircle so his chair would fit right up to it. His valet waited outside for him while he was attending lectures and laboratory periods, and his car called for him at the end of each day's session."

"Incidentally, this is the method he uses now in his downtown laboratory and in the one at home. His chauffeur and valet are always available and special furniture makes it as convenient as possible for him."

"During his school career, he was injured again. A truck ran into his automobile and the end of his spine, the coccyx, was broken off. That injury failed to heal, but Tom went right ahead with his school work and then with his job."

Thus it was that Thomas Pierce, Jr., paralyzed, the end of his spine broken off and the wound unhealed, finished a course in chemical engineering with one of the highest scholastic standards ever made in Washington university. It was in this condition that he went to work for the Monsanto Chemical company three years ago.

Caught Sailfish.
His term with the Monsanto concern was temporarily halted last October by another operation on his spine in an attempt to heal the fractured coccyx. Before that, however, he had discovered a new method of manufacturing aspirin, a method which he patented and turned over to his employers who now use it exclusively. And he also had formulated "Neez," a compound to prolong the life of silk stockings, which he sold to a chemical firm.

At present he is in Florida, recovering from the last operation. His latest achievement occurred there recently. His chair was wheeled aboard a yacht which sailed out into the Gulf stream and he caught three sailfish.

Accompanied by his valet and an orderly from Barns hospital, young Pierce was wheeled aboard a yacht which took him to the Gulf stream, eight miles offshore, which is the only place sailfish may be caught.

Long, slender, with a pointed proboscis, somewhat like that of the swordfish, and with a sail-like dorsal fin, they are generally conceded to be the most difficult fish in the world to land. They put up a stiff battle after they are hooked, and frequently leap high out of the water and shake the hooks out of their mouths.

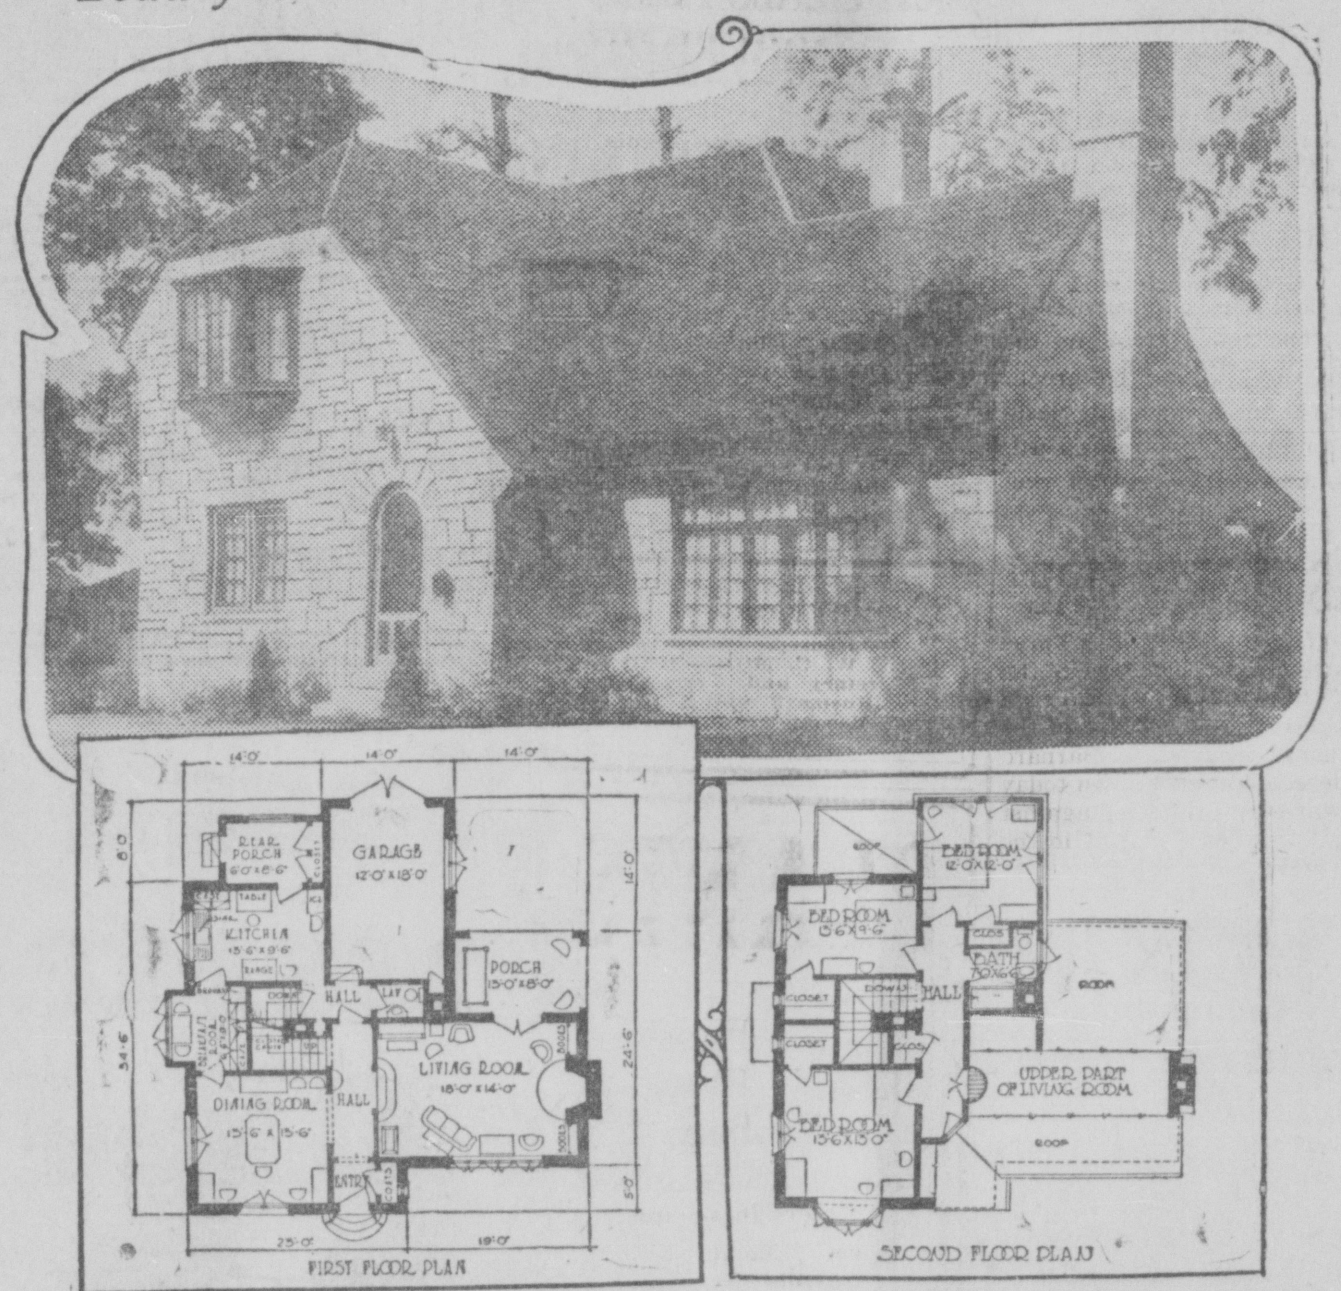

"In catching three in a single day, one eight and one-half, one seven, and one six feet long, Tom set a record at Miami Beach, and as far as we know, it may be a world's record," said his father.

BUT GOING IN THE SAME DIRECTION

Beauty of the Palace Now Found in the Small Home

In the next five years home building will attain a momentum undreamed of before, if predictions of architects come true.

Love of individual home life and its rich comforts, as well as its higher prestige in a community, are causing a drift from apartments to homes.

Beauty and richness in architecture, once limited to the man of means, now may be had by the small home builder.

Take the home here shown, a $15,000 "mansion" in a mid-west city. The interior arrangement is interesting. The living room is on a level with the porch, two steps below the rest of the house. It gives a vista from the hall overlooking the living room. Besides the living room, dining room and kitchen there is a charming breakfast nook with nicely arranged cases. House and garage are linked by a rear hall.

On the second floor are three bedrooms, each with ample closet space and a bathroom. A little balcony overlooks the living room from the upper hallway, opposite the large fireplace, whose location makes possible the very attractive outside chimney. Every room has abundant light. All bedrooms have a cross current of air, one being like a glassed-in sleeping porch.

Equally attractive is the exterior, for it is substantial, permanent and beautiful, being faced with sawed limestone veneer over wood frame construction. At reasonable cost such facing material now is available anywhere in the nation through new quantity production methods developed by the Indiana Limestone Company. Records of the Home Builders' Service Bureau, Bedford, Ind., where the design of this home may be obtained, indicate a growing determination on the part of the small home builder to strive for the ideal combination of beauty and utility.

Guinn shook his head. "It beats me. A young girl with everything in the world she wants!"

"Millionaires have breakdowns oftener than paupers," said Will drily. "The sanitariums of the country would shut up if the idle rich didn't imagine ailments."

"How long will she be like this?"

"I don't know. But why worry, man? Here she is, safe at home with you, getting the care she needs. Just give nature time."

Tears stood in the father's eyes. "I want her like she used to be!" Irene bent over his chair and CHAPTER LXIV.

TINA appointed herself chief nurse for Lilith. She would sit beside her while she sewed tirelessly on lingerie for her trousseau, on linens for her new home—rolling and whipping and hemstitching. Irene could hear snatches of her talk through the open door. "And I told Dan—"

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife Lilith that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill, called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton to whom he was engaged. Irene and Dr. Lundy, family friend, see her through this tragic experience and prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant dies, they return home with Lilith guarding the secret of her shame. Tina is preparing to marry a handsome local lad of means. Irene is torn between happiness for Tina and fear of Lilith's shame becoming known. She becomes nervous and jumpy at each sound of the doorbell or phone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Oh, who went with you, Lilith?"

"A man I didn't know very well. I haven't seen him since."

"You've had so many beaux you couldn't remember them all. Now Dan is the only real sweetheart I ever had."

Once in a while Tina brought Dan up to see Lilith for a few minutes. "He's one of the family, you know, so Doctor Will's orders don't mean him," she would explain.

Dan would talk with tempered gaiety, and then tiptoe out with the obvious relief of a man escaping from a sick room. Then he and Tina would whisk away in his car, spec where they could talk about their trip around the world. They made new plans for that every day.

Pat would take her doll sewing into Lilith's room, and work while she chattered about her miniature family.

"I've got such a lot of children, and they keep me busy. I've got a new baby, a little boy, but I don't know how to do for him. He's peaked and puny. I don't know whether I'll raise him or not."

"No," asked Lilith listlessly. "Do you know what to do with an ailing baby, Lilith?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Pat, come and do some errands for me," called Irene.

On another day, Pat perched herself on the edge of her sister's bed and said gaily, "I've brought a daisy to tell your fortune. You pick the petals off, you know."

Irene called: "Pat, please go and turn the sprinkler on and water my flowers."

"You never let me stay still a minute and visit with Lilith," Pat grumbled as she clumped down the stairs.

The boys were thoughtful of Lilith. They tiptoed in and out of her room, checked their arguments at her door, brought her all sorts of queer offerings, told her of their adventures, and would lay a dewy pansy or a rosebud or a spray of fern beside her plate, and would dominate her till she ate what he considered a fair meal. Rossiter brought home tributes of ice cream, chewing gum and candy. Lilith would be remote as the stars.

"Sometimes I feel like she's not there," he told his mother one day. "It's funny, kind of weird."

"She's had a bad nervous breakdown," said his mother.

"I'll say she has."

Guinn asked Will Lundy anxiously one day, "Why does Lilith look so unhappy? She lies there like a corpse, with no life in her except in those big, beautiful blue eyes of hers that almost break my heart."

Will answered in a matter-of-fact tone: "Melancholia is one of the commonest symptoms of a nervous breakdown. Don't rush her. She'll come back gradually."

Guinn shook his head. "It beats me. A young girl with everything in the world she wants!"

"How long will she be like this?"

"I don't know. But why worry, man? Here she is, safe at home with you, getting the care she needs. Just give nature time."

The gargoyle face became solemn, tender, and the dark eyes shone with love.

"Miss Tina, when you done tol' me you and Mr. Dan was going to get married, I tel' the Lawd He could strike me wid His lightning and I wouldn't holler. He could shiver me with His thunder and I wouldn't howl. Ef He let such a handsome thing happen to my honey lamb as to marry Mr. Dan, he could kick and cuff this fool nigger around any way He's a mind to. I wouldn't open my mouth with a mumbling word."

Tina's eyes filled with tears, and she hugged Sheba impulsively. "You're the best thing in the world!"

Sheba waved her dishcloth and spoke abruptly, to conceal her emotion. "Now you chillun clear outen my kitchen so I can git my wick done."

Irene went upstairs to take Lilith some iced lemonade and to turn the electric fan on beside her bed. Lilith met her with her usual look of courteous, passive hostility. Irene felt only compassion, knowing how the girl's pride must suffer to think what her stepmother knew about her. Resentment writhed beneath her surface show of indifference—but who could wonder? It was an abnormal situation.

Lilith seemed to skirt around the truth dangerously with light presence to say things with light kissed him swiftly. She couldn't trust herself to speak. . . .

Only Sheba, of all the household, failed in devoted attention to the invalid. She would go into the room upstairs each morning, sweep and dust, but she stuck out as if a bumblebee had stung it, and would do her cleaning in proud silence.

Irene asked herself fearfully if Sheba could possibly guess the truth. Did she know by roodoo what had happened? But then, she had never liked Lilith, perhaps just because she adored Tina, and felt her darling was put upon for the pampered elder sister. . . .

Callers came in and out, asked solicitously for the returned daughter, but were never permitted to see her. The women brought flowers and dainties, as much food as would support a dozen invalids.

"We sure are living high, with Lil sick," said Rossiter. "Four pies today, besides peach ice cream and watermelon."

"Folks must think Lil's trouble is a tapeworm," said Pat.

"Don't tell 'em any better," cautioned Lundy, as he filled his pickets with cookies.

Sheba maintained her granite silence in the face of even any talk about Lilith. Her face was a black mask, inscrutable, and her eyes held jungle cunning, jungle hates.

"Good thing for Lilith that she eats the same food the rest of us do, else Sheba might put a spider in her tea," said Irene to herself.

Tina pined for the kitchen, with a rose-colored chiffon dress over her arm.

"Sheba, would you have time to press this for me?" she wheedled. "I'm going to a party with Mr. Dan tonight, and I want to look my nicest."

The black face instantly melted into tenderness. "Shore I will, honey. I been working so hard all day I been streaking with my tongue hanging out, but I'll fix you up pretty for Mr. Dan."

Tina gave her shoulder a pat. "You approve of my sweetheart as much as mother does, don't you, Sheba?"

mockery of truth that Irene would understand, but no one else, save Dr. Lundy. She indulged in an oblique candor that made the stepmother shiver with fright, and her irony was two-edged, like a sword.

One evening, when she was better, and the whole family, including Dan, had gathered in her room for a brief visit, some one spoke of Tina's honeymoon trip.

Dan spoke up. "I want Tina to have the trip she'd like most. There are so many places I've been to that I want to see again, with her."

Lilith spoke lightly: "Jove laughs at lovers' trite remarks, as at their perjuries, doesn't he?"

Irene answered instantly: "Well, I love such trite remarks—from Dan. Please don't ridicule him out of them. Her young face glowed with radiance of her joy as she looked at Dan. "I want to go to Paris, first of all."

Pat spoke up. "If I had my ratherness, I'd rather go to Paris than anywhere else. Is that where you want to go, Lil?"

"Yes," The blue eyes had the cold gleam in the heart of a glacier, the remote, uncaring look that frightened her mother. "For one day in Paris just now, I'd sign away ten years of my life."

"What do you want most to see, Lil?" Pat leaned eagerly against the bed.

"The people interest me most," said Lilith. Irene shivered at the look in her eyes—rebellious passion, tragic hate, grief inexpressible. Then Lilith closed her eyes and turned back on her pillow.

"I'll take you to Paris some day, Lil," offered Pat. "If it don't cost too much."

"I'll probably get there before you do," said Lilith. "I mean to go, no matter what it costs."

"I've never been anywhere, so it will all seem gorgeous to me," said Tina, with shining eyes. "But Paris will be heaven."

"Paris can be both heaven and hell," said Lilith.

Fealty to Her "Folks"

Old "Mammy's" Passion. Unswerving fealty to her "white folks" was an outstanding characteristic of the old-time "mammy." The instances are many where even after her emancipation she remained with the family to which she had belonged to succeeding generations. She not only was an "old miss" during life and close on eyes when she fell asleep in death, but she was present at the birth of all the children and helped to rear them, and mayhap to perform the same office for the grand children and great-grandchildren. When "Young Miss" was married "mammy" usually exercised her prerogative of being the first to kiss the bride, and "mammy's" osculatory evidence not only was sincere and genuine, but it was regarded as good luck.

Often "mammy's" own "white folks" became financially embarrassed and lost everything, but "mammy" did not desert them. On the other hand, she invariably stuck to them through thick and thin and was willing to share any reverses to which they might be subjected. There was a devotion that was strong and lasting.

Her "white folks" might forgive an enemy, but "mammy" never forgot or forgave one who wronged any of her people. Often she took the family name with which she was so long identified and in death many of the old-time "black mammys" sleep in the family burial plot in a grave reserved for them. In many graveyards the epitaph on her tombstone bears witness to the fidelity of some negro "mammy."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Keep youth longer!

cleanse the system of poisons

Two of the great enemies to youth and vitality are delayed elimination and intestinal poisons. To keep yourself free from both these common difficulties will help you to stay young.

With the use of Nujol you can do it too. For Nujol absorbs body poisons and carries them off, preventing their absorption by the body. Nujol also softens the waste matter and brings about normal evacuation. It is harmless; contains no drugs or medicine. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys. Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.

THINK BEFORE YOU DEFY HEALTH RULES

Nature is a Relentless Policeman, Says Dr. Copeland and Sooner or Later Will Call You to Account for Habitual Breaking of Her Laws.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D. United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ONCE in a while you read something that gives you a funny feeling. Just now I saw a sentence of this sort in a newspaper. How does it strike you?

"Game laws are better enforced than laws for the protection of human life."

Man is regarded as a free moral agent. That is, he is so regarded in respect to most things. Of course, many laws are enacted to control his conduct, but in most of his doings and not-doings he is left to himself.

But the laws for the protection of wild game are enforced strictly. It is not safe to shoot deer out of season, or to take home the undersized fish.

But many laws intended to protect human life are not frequently more honored in the breach, than the observance. This is a pity.

Nothing can be more precious than human life. It makes me sad when I observe the many and serious violations of the laws intended to guard health.

In enlightened communities the officials make pretty consistent efforts to enforce the laws and ordinances enacted to protect human life. Too often, however, efforts at enforcement are spasmodic and half-hearted. This is a mistake.

As regards health there are many laws that existed long before men thought in terms of legislation. I refer, of course, to the laws of nature. These are the first of the "unwritten laws." They always have been and always will be.

Nature is kind and patient. She will forgive a good deal. But just as sure as you are born she will call you to account for continued misdeeds, for habitual violations of the health rules.

Many a bootlegger is never caught. Thousands of murderers are never discovered. Burglars ply their trade and are never found by the police. Man-made laws are broken every day and in a percentage of cases nothing happens.

But that isn't the way with nature's laws. She is more unforgiving than the most perfect adding machine. She records every failure of yours to satisfy her demands.

We forget this fact sometimes. We take a chance of getting pneumonia, of having a fatal accident, of poisoning the blood. We wouldn't think of catching trout out of season, but we do not hesitate a minute about catching cold.

The sign, "Do not trespass," is likely to be observed. "No hunting allowed," is an admonition that is heeded. But what about the sanitary law, "Never cough or sneeze without covering the face?"

We should help to enforce the sanitary laws and certainly should

Answers to Health Queries

R. M. C. Q.—What do you advise for superfluous hair?

A.—Superfluous hair can be successfully removed with the electric needle, but must be employed by an expert. A bleach is something helpful. For details send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. G. D. Q.—What is the object of a spinal puncture, and in what way does it effect a person?

A.—It does not effect one. Spinal fluid is withdrawn for examination.

A. B. C. Q.—What causes dizzy spells?

A.—Dizziness may be due to a circulatory disturbance, to an eye or ear condition, or to some intestinal disturbance. An examination will determine the exact cause and then definite treatment can be prescribed. Copyright, 1929, Neuman Feature Service, Inc.

SEEK TO LINK TWO MURDERS

Torch Slayer of One Woman Is Being Questioned About Similar Crime.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 13.—A new attempt was to be made today to link Henry Colin Campbell confessed "torch slayer" of Mrs. Mildred Mowry to the murder of Miss Margaret Brown, New York governess.

Miss Brown's body, like that of Mrs. Mowry, was found blazing in a pool of gasoline on a lonely road near here. No motive for her murder has ever been established. Campbell confessed to shooting and burning Mrs. Mowry on the night of Feb. 23.

The similarity of the two crimes is what has led police to believe that they may have been the work of the same man. Prosecutors David and Bergen, of Somerset-co, who are aiding in the prosecution, are convinced that if both crimes were not committed by the same man the latter one was inspired by the first.

While readily admitting Mrs. Mowry's murder, Campbell has steadfastly insisted that he has no knowledge of Miss Brown's death other than what he read in the newspapers.

Prominent among the added developments in the sensational case today were an announcement by Campbell's wife, Mrs. Rosalie Campbell, an attractive woman of 35, that she "intended sticking by her husband until he is dead," and the revelation that Campbell had become addicted to dope since the slaying.

HIGH CLASS FILMS ARE BOOKED HERE

The following excellent pictures, with the best rating for this year, have been procured by the management of the Cliftona theater for showing in the next few weeks: "Weary River" with Richard Barthelmus; "The Iron Mask" with Douglas Fairbanks; "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Barker," "The Idle Rich," and on May 5, that remarkable picture, "The Broadway Melody," will start. On Saturday, April 20, the sound pictures will be shown for the first time.

Mayor Hedges Is First Buyer Of Leper Tags

Mayor B. T. Hedges wore the first tag for the Leper Fund Friday afternoon. Tom Hill, widely known colored man of Circleville, was the first volunteer to offer his contribution to the fund. The city is responding liberally to this cause, which although vague to some, is nevertheless worthy to all.

The sight of the chocolate cake in the window at the mayor's office is urging the persons selling tags to greater activity, and the two other prizes, tickets to the Cliftona and Grand theaters, are especially attractive to the young children. Sale of the tags will continue until late Saturday night.

Selling the tags are John Mason, Eloise Hanley, Betty Fissell, Martha Osborn, Nina Denman, Mary May Haswell, Sarah Steinhauer, Charlotte Steinhauer, Waldo Hilyard, Dorothy Lyle, Bob Adkins, Bobby Fickard, Miss Mary Pickens, Miss Martha Mary Jacob, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, Miss Doris Peters, Charlotte Moore and Mrs. George Crites.

The Scottish Race

The Scots did not originate in Ireland, but the tribe that supplied the name Scotland did.

Like all the other inhabitants of Europe, the Scots are a mixed race. When the Roman General Agricola invaded Scotland in 78 A. D. he found tribes with varied dialects, some probably speaking Gaelic and others, Celtic, the speech of the Britons. He called them all Celts.

The Scots came in when Rome withdrew her legions in 410 A. D. They were a tribe from Ireland who conquered a lot of territory and gave the nation its name.

power and the term of members would be for six years.

The board's powers would include authority to create stabilization corporations, one for each commodity, out of cooperative marketing associations. The board then would have power to lend up to $225,000,000 of government funds to these stabilization corporations to aid them in marketing surplus crops. A special $50,000,000 fund would be at the board's disposal for loans to cooperative marketing associations to end the latter in normal marketing operations.

In order to encourage farmers to join the cooperatives, the bill includes a $25,000,000 fund for loans to cooperatives for use in membership drives. Another $25,000,000 fund would be set aside to cover insurance of cooperatives against price fluctuations. All these loans would bear but four percent interest.

ORCHESTRA BENEFIT
First Nationala thrilling mystery comedy "The Gorilla," which features Alice Day and Charlie Murray will be shown at the Clifton theatre April 13.

"The Gorilla," is known as one of the weirdest and funniest comedies ever written. There are spine-tickling thrills and rib tickling laughs throughout the entire picture.

The main feature of the evening will be the high school orchestra, which will play a thirty-five minute concert during the evening intermission.

Other features will be a vocal duet by Howard Greeno and John Perry and an organ and piano duet by Sheldon Mader and Mr. Muck, the theatre organist.

Twenty-five per cent of receipts go to high school orchestra. Students are urged to boost the ticket sale.

Tickets are being sold by members of the orchestra and the price is the usual one of 25 and 10 cents.

The program is: March, Washington Post, Overture, White Queen, Selection, Bohemian Girl, March, Friendship, Selection, First Heart Throbs, Vocal Duet, Sweethearts on Parade, March, On the Mall, Selection, Operatic Strains and March, Our Defenders.

SOPHOMORES TO PRESENT PLAY

Sophomore class will present practice play for chapel sometime in the future, a symbolic fantasy in one act, called "Most Foolish Virgin," by Helen Gertrude Gas. Music to accompany the act will be played by Dorothy Clark. The play is placed at kings court. Tentative cast as announced by Mr. Fetherlin is: Mela, daughter of the king, Doris Peters; her virgin, Ruth Carothers; second virgin, Martha Kinney; third virgin, Mary Ryan; fourth virgin, Elsie Edridge; fifth virgin, Mary Robinson; Valiana virgin of nobility, Elsie Stonerock; her handmaidens: sixth virgin, Jane Steele; seventh virgin, Cle Brown; Caradiah, matron of the court; Jeanette Dower; the hero, Zanula, a slave girl; Jeanette Ruff; an oil merchant; Doris East; and a prince, the bridegroom, Loren Peters.

SENIORS TEST

Mary Kelleher, with a percentile score of 77 was high scorer of the school when the English vocabulary tests were given in Mrs. Wagon's English literature class. The day, "The runners up" were Elliott Barnhill with a score of 70, Kenneth Elm with 67, George Gaskill with 67, and Veronica Kober and Irma Rader with 66 each. And Arthur Johnson with 65. The class median was 63 and the lowest score was 35. According to the standard test score, the high school seniors' average should be 58. Most of our seniors' scores were above the average. These named above have college freshman vocabulary rating.

NURSES SPEAK TO SENIORS

"What We Feel a Nurse Is" was the topic on which Mrs. Woolson, superintendent of nurses at the Columbus Radium hospital talked to the senior girls when she and Miss Taylor visited the high school, Tuesday. The hospital Mrs. Woolson said, has many attributes—reasonable hours, adequate income and opportunity for growth. Four years of high school credits are required for entrance. After registering a nurse spends 120 days as a probationer. Nine hours on day duty, and three hours of recreation composes the nurses' day. Overnight leave is given once a month.

The last six months of the nurses' training is spent in Cincinnati where she becomes equipped to compete with the nurses of any large hospital. Six weeks of public health work is given in the senior year.

After the probation period, the nurse receives $3.00 a month for the first year. The remaining two years she gets $10.00 a month.

Mrs. Woolson stressed the point that nursing was one profession that a person could "fall back on."

Miss Taylor, supervisor of nurses at Radium hospital gave a short talk on the locality of the hospital and the work they were accomplishing. At first the hospital was intended for an experimental station for radium and the X-ray. Now, however, it is a general hospital with a three fold purpose, to care for the sick, to train physicians and nurses, and to do research work. It also contains a patient clinic, and a nurses' home. They are contemplating the building of a new hospital in the immediate future.

Miss Taylor said "I consider nursing the most worthwhile work." We get out of it just what we put into it. It is an honorable profession.

These two ladies came to the school to interest the senior girls in taking up nursing as a life work. At the Radium hospital they try to turn out the very best nurses. It is smaller than some of the other hospitals, but each student receives daily individual attention.

All those girls who were interested in going to this hospital gave their addresses to Mrs. Woolson.

SHORT CUTS IN THE SCHOOL

A short time ago an article issued by Better Schools League, Inc. was brought to our notice, and we think it might be a benefit to someone to print the high points of the article, "Short Cuts in the School."

Short cuts in education often prove the longest way to the goal. Hasty steps taken by the school officials, teachers, and parents alike, never result in the profitable gain that would have resulted if slower, and better considered steps, had been taken.

Ill-considered short cuts can have disturbing consequences—waste of community funds, impairment of school morale, and a wrong attitude on the part of the pupils.

Short cuts in education and in every other activity of life are balked. In one we see the jaywalker, the fellow who tramples the lawn at street corners, the person who does not wait for the traffic lights, the automobile driver who drives to work at 50 miles an hour; in the school we see the ambitious school board member, the teacher who wants to teach without first having taken proper training, the pupil who wants to finish school sooner than is adequate for the child's foundation, the pupil who loafs in school and graduates by the "skin of his teeth." All are using the short cut and but few successfully. These are only a few of the long list of short cuts which we see every day.

"The business of education is a reasoned profession, evolved by thinking men and women, based on years of research and experience. Advocates of short cuts should think before lending support to doubtful departures."

COACH TO STUDY

June 17 to 29 Coach J. M. Guthrie will be the very latest about the school. Coach Knute R. L. of the F. N. Dams, who will be in the school, will demonstrate his winning ways at the coaching school. The coaching school is being held at the Radium hospital, and on the playing field at Wittenberg's stadium. Barnhill will be taught at the school by Dr. Walter Menzies of Wagon, who is winning considerable fame as a well known sportsman, and whose invention of the short and short pass football is a new style of play is expected to be popular.

The third summer coaching school at Wittenberg, "Phog" Allen being instructed in 1928 when coaches from 30 states assembled there. Freshmen class joins in extending our sincere sympathy to Harold Dresbach, our fellow classman in his late bereavement.

ELBOW GREASE VS. HOT AIR

"Elbow Grease," who always did things for the betterment of those around him, and "Hot Air," who never did anything unless it was to "blow up" about something he had done which hadn't resulted as a benefit to anybody, nor anything met at C. H. S. to have their weekly "bout." While watching a few hardy, husky lads working out in spring football and track practices, the following conversation occurred:

"What a foolish thing to do on such a beautiful day. Don't know I would rather 'skip' school and take a ride in my 'fiver,'" related Hot Air.

"Foolish? Whv, man, that is one of the best things that was ever introduced in this school. With those boys working out there this spring will be able to at least meet some of the football squads next season with a cleaner slate than we did during the last one," defended Elbow Grease.

"I am sure mother would never think of letting you out on that field. Those boys would probably kill you in the first scrimmage, and anyway you have to know your onions, and expect to know more about them before you finish if you would go out there."

"I don't know how those boys ever get their lessons, after spending several hours working out there."

"Oh, they get their lessons all right. They aren't the kind that give up without a fight. How do they accomplish it? Well, when they play, they play hard, and when they work, they work harder than usual. That's how it's done."

"Well, I don't see any logic in that."

"You wouldn't. When you first came down here I knew you were trying to pick a fight. Well, if you want to fight, I'm ready any time."

"Why, no, I didn't say I wanted to fight, I think after all that is a rather poble task, especially if you want to do a good turn for your alma mater. I tell you what I'll do. I believe I'll come out tomorrow night and help you in a scrimmage."

"Remember, we don't want you unless you are willing to stick through thick and thin."

"Oh, I realize that."

"Good, let's shake on it. I'll expect to see you out tomorrow night."

ARBOR DAY

When signs of spring return in nature, the tree lover once again turns his thoughts to Arbor Day. Better Schools Bulletin of the Ohio State Department of Education has devoted the entire March edition to the discovery of forestry, and bird life.

The American Tree Association, situated at Washington, D. C., is making rapid progress in its efforts for local organizations. This association has realized that our trees play a vital part in our industrial and social progress. Trees are the background of our history and our very existence as a nation has been made possible by the heritage of our forests. With America using one-half of all the timber in the world, it is necessary that we acquaint everyone with the necessity of preserving our trees.

Ohio is blessed with eight really famous trees. Of course the best known, and in all probability the most beautiful, is Logan Elm near here. No one need be reminded of its historical significance.

The McGuffey Elms, fifteen beautiful elms on the north side of the campus at Ohio University at Athens are said to have been planted by William McGuffey when he was president of that institution. There were originally forty-eight in the row.

The Fort Allen Sycamore marks the site of Old Fort Allen, built in 1813 by Gen. William Henry Harrison. It is near Giffin.

The Centennial Oak was planted in commemoration of the organization of the Woman's Suffrage Political Club of Newbury. A lead box containing the names of those present was planted at the roots of the tree.

The Cary Oak was planted by Alice and Phoebe Cary when they were children. It is on the Hamilton-Cincinnati road near the Clover Nook Home for the blind.

Less Oak in Cincinnati is famous because the original description of the hybrid which occurs throughout Ohio was taken from it.

EXCHANGE

The Green and White Students of Ohio University spent the week-end in entertaining and showing the campus to those wonderful people, their mothers.

The pageant "Robin Hood's Revelry" was the feature event of the entertainment.

Capital Chimes

Mother-Daughter Banquet. Troutman Hall was the scene of the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet. This banquet is held under the auspices of the C. A. P., is a tradition, and is held each year.

Honor to Unsung Heroes. To give due recognition in print to an individual or group of individuals performing or rendering meritorious and praiseworthy acts in behalf of or for Capital University, which might otherwise pass unnoticed, is the purpose of a new feather of Capital Chimes, called the Chimes Award.

This week's award goes to three sophomores, Mr. Cork Mohioff, Mr. Earl Beach, of Crestville Ohio, and Mr. Theodore Lufeld for their faithful and inspiring services as chapel trumpeters.

Kenyon College

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" chosen George M. Cohen's "Seven Keys to Baldpate" has been chosen by the senior class for presentation near commencement. The handicap of all male casts, is no handicap at all with this play. It will be an ideal play in all ways for the seniors.

The Miami Student

High School Scholarship contest which is being conducted by the state department of education and the college of education at Ohio State University, with the cooperation of Ohio and Miami University and Kent and Bowling Green State Normal colleges, will hold its semi-finals today at Miami college. This contest covers 12 subjects, they are: Algebra, Geometry, Biology, French, Latin, American History, English.

The winners of first, second and third places in each subject in the district contest will go to Columbus April 6 for the finals.

Six first prizes, constituting scholarships carrying free tuition for two years in state supported universities or colleges, of Ohio will be awarded the winners.

The final contest will be a feature of the last session of the Annual Ohio State Educational conference at Ohio State University.

GIRL RESERVE HIRES

At the regular luncheon meeting of the Girl Reserves, it was decided that if the weather will permit, the club shall take a hike. A committee consisting of Doris Peters, Evelyn Steele, Esther Drum, and Jincey Mader was appointed to choose the destination and to plan an appropriate program. The hikes are planned for Tuesday.

There wasn't any discussion but after the business meeting the girls joined in the Friendship Circle to sing "Follow the Glean" and other club songs. Miss Watson is faculty advisor.

NOSEY NAN

Do you know who Nosey Nan is? Try to find out. Nosey Nan is a very temperamental person who finds the remains of notes in desks, waste baskets, and any other place where HE? SHE? happens to find them. This eccentric reporter sometimes goes to the trouble to piece these misdeeds together. Some have a brilliant play of words, others are not so fluent. These budding writers should have a place on our esteemed staff. Here are some of the results of Nosey Nan's labors:

Dearest: Where were you last night? I waited at the Library for an hour and you didn't come. There must be a reason. Answer soon and tell me all. Always love, Kit.

Dearest K: I've got two tickets for "Second Childhood" Tuesday night. Can you slip away from the G and come? Meet me at 7 bells on the corner of Main and Court and everything will be swell. S.

Dearest Kid: How did you know I was out with R last night? Didn't get home till 1:30. They say M. has a crush on E. I wonder what E. has old girl has to say. Nothing to rave about, in either one. There's the bell, shucks had so much to say. Ta Ta, Ray.

Dear C: Just had a Latin test. Whoopee! I think I passed. Gee, she's hard on you though. Did Glen take you home last night? Boy, hasn't he got beau-ti-ful hair. Here comes the study hall pest. Must sign off. Ans. soon. H.

Can you go for a ride tonight? G and H. will have the Ford and we can have lots of fun. Let me know so J. and I. can buy the gas. Gee, I can hardly wait. Tell me soon, darling.

ooooooooooooles of love, J. C.

ORCHESTRA BENEFIT

First Nationals thrilling mystery comedy "The Gorilla," which features Alice Day and Charlie Murray will be shown at the Clifton theatre April 18.

"The Gorilla," is known as one of the weirdest and funniest comedies ever written. There are spine-tickling thrills and rib tickling laughs throughout the entire picture.

The main feature of the evening will be, the high school orchestra, which will play a thirty-five minute concert during the evening intermission.

Other features will be a vocal duet by Howard Greeno and John Perry and an organ and piano duo by Sheldon Mader and Mr. Muck, the theatre organist.

Twenty-five per cent of receipts go to high school orchestra. Students are urged to boost the ticket sale.

Tickets are being sold by members of the orchestra and the price is the usual one of 25 and 10 cents.

The program is: March, Washington Post, Overture, White Queen, Selection, Bohemian Girl March, Friendship, Selection, First Heart Throbs, Vocal Duet, Sweethearts on Parade, March, On the Mail, Selection, Operatic Strains and March, Our Defenders.

SOPHOMORES TO PRESENT PLAY

Sophomore class will present a practice play for chapel sometime in the future, a symbolic fantasy in one act, called "Most Foolish Virgin," by Helen Gertrude Gas till. Music to accompany the act will be played by Dorothy Clark. The play is placed at kings court. Tentative cast as announced by Mr. Fetherlin is: Mela, daughter of the king, Doris Peters; her virgin, Ruth Carothers; second virgin, Martha Kinney; third virgin, Mary Ryan; fourth virgin, Eloise Eldridge; fifth virgin, Mary Robinson; Vallaria, virgin of noble birth, Eloise Stonerock; her hank maidens: sixth virgin, Crac Steele; seventh virgin, Cle Brown; Candalla, matron of the court; Jeanette Bower; the heroine, Zanula, a slave girl, Jeannette Ruff; an oil merchant, Edward Bost; and a prince, the bride groom, Loren Peters.

SENIORS TEST

Marie Kellstadt, with a percentile score of 77, was high scorer of the school when the Ingles English vocabulary tests were given in Miss Watson's English literature class, Tuesday. The "runners up" were Elliott Barnhill with a score of 70, Kenneth Ulm with 67, George Colville with 67, and Veronica Kuhns and Irma Rader with 66 each, and Arthur Johnson with 65. The class median was 63, and the lowest score was 35. According to the standard test score, the high school seniors' average should be 58. Most of our seniors' scores were above the average. Those named above have college freshman vocabulary rating.

NURSES SPEAK TO SENIORS

"What We Feel a Nurse Is" was the topic on which Mrs. Woolson, superintendent of nurses at the Columbus Radium hospital talked to the senior girls when she and Miss Taylor visited the high school, Tuesday. The hospital, Mrs. Woolson said, has many attributes—reasonable hours, adequate income and opportunity for growth. Four years of high school credits are required for entrance. After registering a nurse spends 120 days as a probationer. Nine hours on duty daily, and three hours of recreation composes the nurses' day. Overnight leave is given once a month.

The last six months of the nurses' training is spent in Cincinnati where she becomes equipped to compete with the nurses of any large hospital. Six weeks of public health work is given in the senior year.

After the probation period, the nurse receives $8.00 a month for the first year. The remaining two years she gets $10.00 a month.

Mrs. Woolson stressed the point that nursing was one profession that a person could "fall back on."

Miss Taylor, supervisor of nurses at Radium hospital gave a short talk on the locality of the hospital and the work they were accomplishing. At first the hospital was intended for an experimental station for radium and the X-ray. Now, however, it is a general hospital with a three fold purpose, to care for the sick, to train physicians and nurses, and to do research work. It also contains a patient clinic, and a nurses' home. They are contemplating the building of a new hospital in the immediate future.

Miss Taylor said, "I consider nursing the most worthwhile work."

We get out of it just what we put into it. It is an honorable profession.

These two ladies came to the school to interest the senior girls in taking up nursing as a life work. At the Radium hospital they try to turn out the very best nurses. It is smaller than some of the other hospitals, but each student receives daily individual attention.

All those girls who were interested in going to this hospital gave their addresses to Mrs. Woolson.

SHORT CUTS IN THE SCHOOL

A short time ago an article isued by Better Schools League, Inc., was brought to our notice, and we think it might be a benefit to someone to print the high points of the article, "Short Cuts in the School."

Short cuts in education often prove the longest way to the goal. Hasty steps taken by the school officials, teachers, and parents alike, never result in the profitable gain that would have resulted if slower, and better considered steps, had been taken.

Ill-considered short cuts can have disturbing consequences—waste of community funds, impairment of school morale, and a wrong attitude on the part of the pupils.

Short cuts in education and in every other activity of life are parallel. In one we see the jaywalker, the fellow who tramples the lawn at street corners, the person who does not wait for the traffic lights, the automobile driver who drives to work at 50 miles an hour; in the school we see the new, ambitious school board member, the teacher who wants to teach without first having taken proper training, the pupil who quits in order to earn money, the parents who want their child to finish school sooner than is adequate for the child's foundation, the pupil who loafs in school and graduates by the "skin of his teeth." All are using the short cut and but few, successfully. These are only a few of the long list of short cuts which we see every day.

"The business of education is a reasoned profession, evolved by linking men and women, based upon years of research and experience. Advocates of short cuts in it should think before lending support to doubtful departures."

COACH TO STUDY

June 17 to 29 Coach J. M. Guthrie will hear the very latest about football from Coach Knute K. Rockne of Notre Dame, who will lecture and demonstrate his winning plays at the coaching school during the all-day sessions on lecture pavilion and on the playing field in Wittenberg's stadium. Basketball will be taught at this school by Dr. Walter Meanwell of Wisconsin, whose winning combinations are as well known as the sport itself, and whose invention of the pivot and short pass, five-man defense style of play is being used the country over.

This is the third summer coaching school at Wittenberg, "Pop" Warner and "Phog" Allen having instructed in 1928, when coaches from 30 states assembled there.

Freshmen class joins in extending our sincere sympathy to Harold Dresbach, our fellow classman in his late bereavement.

ELBOW GREASE VS. HOT AIR

"Elbow Grease," who always did things for the betterment of those around him, and "Hot Air" who never did anything unless it was to "blow up" about something he had done which hadn't resulted as a benefit to anybody nor anything, met at C. H. S. to have their weekly "bout." While watching a few hardy, husky lads working out in spring football and track practices, the following conversation occurred:

"What a foolish thing to do on such a beautiful day. Don'tch know I would rather 'skip' school and take a ride in my flivver," related Hot Air.

"Foolish? Whiv, man, that is one of the best things that was ever introduced in this school. With those boys working out there this spring will be able to at least meet some of the football squads next season with a cleaner slate than we did during the last one," defended Elbow Grease.

"I am sure mother would never think of letting you out on that field. Those boys would probably kill you in the first scrimmage, and anyway you have to know your onions, and expect to know more about them before you finish if you would go out there."

"I don't know how those boys ever get their lessons, after spending several hours working out there."

"Oh, they get their lessons all right. They aren't the kind that give up without a fight. How do they accomplish it? Well, when they play, they play hard, and when they work, they work harder than usual. That's how it's done."

"Well, I don't see any logic in that."

"You wouldn't. When you first came down here I knew you were trying to pick a fight. Well, if you want to fight, I'm ready any time."

"Why, no, I didn't say I wanted to fight, I think after all that is a rather poble task, especially if you want to do a good turn for your alma mater. I tell you what I'll do. I believe I'll come out tomorrow night and help you in scrimmage."

"Remember, we don't want you unless you are willing to stick through thick and thin."

"Oh, I realize that."

"Good, let's shake on it. I'll expect to see you out tomorrow night."

ARBOR DAY

When signs of spring return in nature, the tree lover once again turns his thoughts to Arbor Day. Better Schools Bulletin of the Ohio State Department of Education has devoted the entire March edition to the discovery of forestry, and bird life.

The American Tree Association, situated at Washington, D. C., is making rapid progress in its enlistments for local organizations. This association has realized that our trees play a vital part in our industrial and social progress. Trees are the background of our history and our very existence as a nation has been made possible by the heritage of our forests. With America using one-half of all the timber in the world, it is necessary that we acquaint everyone with the necessity of preserving our trees.

Ohio is blessed with eight really famous trees. Of course the best known, and in all probability the most beautiful, is Logan Elm near here. No one need be reminded of its historical significance.

The McGuffey Elms, fifteen beautiful elms on the north side of the campus at Ohio University at Athens are said to have been planted by William McGuffey when he was president of that institution. There were originally forty-eight in the row.

The Fort Ball Sycamore marks the site of Old Fort Ball, built in 1813 by Gen. William Henry Harrison. It is near Giffin.

The Centennial Oak was planted in commemoration of the organization of the Woman's Suffrage Political Club of Newbury. A lead box containing the names of those present was planted at the roots of the tree.

The Cary Oak was planted by Alice and Phoebe Cary when they were children. It is on the Hamilton-Cincinnati pike near the clover Nook Home for the blind.

Leas Oak in Cincinnati is famous because the original description of the hybrid which occurs throughout Ohio, was taken from it.

The President's Grove at Fremont was the former home of Rutherford B. Hays. The grove consists of five oaks and hickories. Each President has a tree named for him. Col. Webb Hayes, son of President Hayes is continuing the naming of the trees for the former Presidents of the United States.

The Author's Grove is located in Eden Park, Cincinnati. It was here that the first Arbor Day festival was observed. Each great American author has from one to three trees named for him.

EXCHANGE

The Green and White

Students of Ohio University spent the week-end in entertaining and showing the campus to those wonderful people, their mothers.

The pageant "Robin Hood's Revelry" was the feature event of the entertainment.

Capital Chimes

Mother-Daughter Banquet. Troutman Hall was the scene of the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet. This banquet is held under the auspices of the C. A. P., is a tradition, and is held each year.

Honor to Unsung Heroes. To give due recognition in print to an individual, or group of individuals performing or rendering meritorious and praiseworthy acts in behalf of or for Capital University, which might otherwise pass unnoticed, is the purpose of a new feather of Capital Chimes, called the Chimes Award.

This week's award goes to three sophomores, Mr. Cork Mohrloff, Mr. Earl Beach, of Crestville Ohio, and Mr. Theodore Lufeld for their faithful and inspiring services as chapel trumpeters.

Kenyon College

"Seven Keys to Baldpate." Chosen. George M. Cohen's "Seven Keys to Baldpate" has been chosen by the senior class for presentation near commencement.

The handicap of all male casts, is no handicap at all with this play. It will be an ideal play in all ways for the seniors.

The Miami Student

High School Scholarship contest which is being conducted by the state department of education and the college of education at Ohio State University, with the co-operation of Ohio and Miami University and Kent and Bowling Green State Normal colleges, will hold its semi-finals today at Miami college. This contest covers 12 subjects, they are: Algebra, Geometry, Biology, French, Latin, American History, English.

The winners of first, second and third places in each subject in the district contest will go to Columbus April 6 for the finals.

Six first prizes, constituting scholarships carrying free tuition for two years in state supported universities or colleges, of Ohio will be awarded the winners.

The final contest will be a feature of the last session of the Annual Ohio State Educational conference at Ohio State University.

GIRL RESERVE HIKES

At the regular luncheon meeting of the Girl Reserves, it was decided that if the weather will permit, the club shall take a hike. A committee consisting of Doris Peters, Evelyn Steele, Esther Drum, and Jincey Mader was appointed to choose the destination and to plan an appropriate program. The hikes are planned for Tuesday.

There wasn't any discussion but after the business meeting the girls joined in the Friendship Circle to sing "Follow the Glean" and other club songs. Miss Watson is faculty advisor.

NOSEY NAN

Do you know who Nosey Nan is? Try to find out. Nosey Nan is a very temperamental person who finds the remains of notes in desks, waste baskets, and any other place where HE? SHE? happens to find them. This eccentric reporter sometimes goes to the trouble to piece these misdeeds together. Some have a brilliant play of words, others are not so fluent. These budding writers should have a place on our esteemed staff. Here are some of the results of Nosey Nan's labors: Dearest:

Where were you last nite? I waited at the Library for an hour and you didn't come. There must be a reason. Answer soon and tell me all. Always love, Kit.

Dearest K: I've got two tickets for "Second Childhood" Tuesday night. Can you slip away from the G and come? Meet me at 7 bells on the corner of Main and Court and everything will be swell. S.

Dearest Kid: How did you know I was out with B last nite? Didn't get home till 1:30. They say M. has a crush on E. I wonder what E. his old girl has to say. Nothing to rave about, in either one. There's the bell, shucks had so much to say. Ta Ta, R.

Dear C: Just had a Latin test. Whoopee! I think I passed. Gee, she's hard on you though. Did Glen take you home last nite? Boy, hasn't he got beau-ti-ful hair. Here comes the study hall pest. Must sign off. Ans. soon. H.

Dear L: Can you go for a ride tonite? G. and H. will have the Ford and we can have lots of fun. Let me know so J. and I. can buy the gas. Gee, I can hardly wait. Tell me soon, darling.

ooooooooooooles of love, J. C.
